Multiple research opportunities are currently available in the Office of Science (OS) at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in Atlanta, Georgia.

The Office of Science \(OS\) mission is to promote quality, integrity, and innovation of CDC science to improve the public's health. The office upholds scientific ideals; establishes an environment of scientific excellence, integrity and innovation; and promotes timely dissemination and translation of scientific information, innovations, and technology. In addition, this office serves as the primary advisor to CDC senior leaders on agency-wide scientific issues.

The Office of Science (OS) offers a variety of high-profile initiatives and projects, while conducting research in a fast-paced environment. Under the guidance of a mentor, the participant will train with staff on opportunities that may include:

- Contributing to projects that focus on different aspects of CDC's Science Agenda that includes Agency wide efforts to advance quality, integrity, and innovation of CDC science
- Participating in quantitative and qualitative data review and analysis related to scientific initiatives within the Office of Science
- Contributing to the development and presentation of scientific information including findings and recommendations, briefing materials, data analysis, policy research and analysis, and project proposals, related to CDC's Science Agenda
- Participating in collaborative engagement with scientific teams and Agency work groups
- Contributing to the development of scientific project proposals and plans including project plan development, tracking and status reporting for key initiatives led by the Office of Science Director and other Senior Leadership in data modernization, knowledge management, and implementation science
