Application Deadline 4/7/2022 3:00:00 PM Eastern Time Zone

Description The National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency (NGA) Office of Research is offering summer faculty fellowships designed to increase engagement and partnerships between Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) and NGA. The IC (Intelligence Community) HBCU Summer Faculty Research Fellowship is a 10-week paid appointment which matches fellows with an NGA mentor from either the Springfield, VA, or St. Louis, MO, location. Up to five fellows will be selected for participation.

Research areas vary and will be assigned based on the candidate's skills and interests. The topics may include:

- AI/Machine Learning/Natural Language Processing
- Computer Vision
- Data Science, especially GEO applications
- Predictive Analytics
- Arctic Studies, especially GEO-related
- Gravity Modeling
- Spectral Sciences
- CYBER
- Motion Imagery/Video Sciences
- Radar, especially Synthetic Aperture Radar
- Crop and Hydrology Studies and Predictions
- GIS
- Remote Sensing

What are the benefits?

As the selected candidate you will receive a $35,000 stipend for participation in the 10-week program and may also be eligible for a travel allowance.

Where will I be located? Those with security clearances will be assigned to either the Springfield, VA, or St. Louis, MO, location. Those without a security clearance will either be assigned to the St. Louis, MO, location or will perform research at their home institution, under the guidance of an NGA mentor.

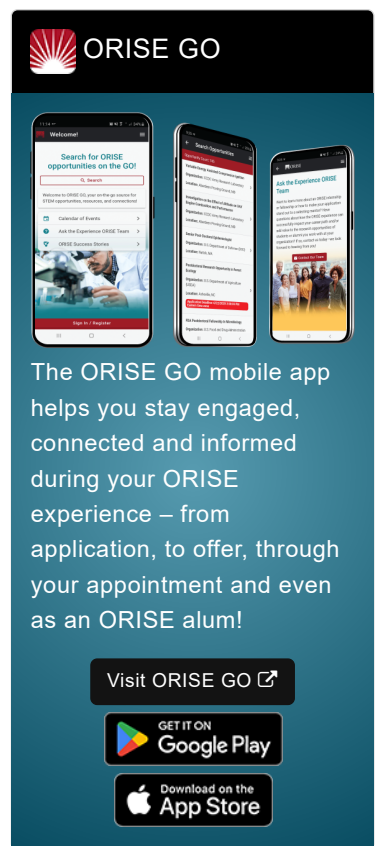

What is the anticipated start date?

The deadline for application submission is 3:00 p.m. ET on Thursday, April 7, 2022.

Appointments will begin in the first or second week of June. The exact start date will be determined at the time of selection and in coordination with the selected candidate.
