What will I be doing?

As an ORISE participant, you will join a community of scientists and researchers in an effort to gain overall hands-on experience in U.S. Army CRM and compliance. You will have the opportunity to improve your skills by assisting with a wide array of tasks pertaining to government archaeology; including, data collection and recovery, data management, lab analysis, report writing and document preparation for archaeological sites, compliance, and historic properties.

Why should I apply?

Under the guidance of a mentor, your research experience may include:

- field work and data collection such as survey
- site recording
- assessments
- GIS data gathering
- compliance monitoring
- artifact identification including analysis and interpretation
- compilation of standard source material
- photography
- curating and organizing the Fort Huachuca artifact collection.

Where will I be located?

Fort Huachuca, Arizona

What is the anticipated start date?

The US Army Environmental Command is ready to make appointments effective immediately. Exact start dates will be determined at the time of selection and in coordination with the selected candidate. Applications are reviewed on an ongoing basis and internships or fellowships will be filled as qualified candidates are identified.
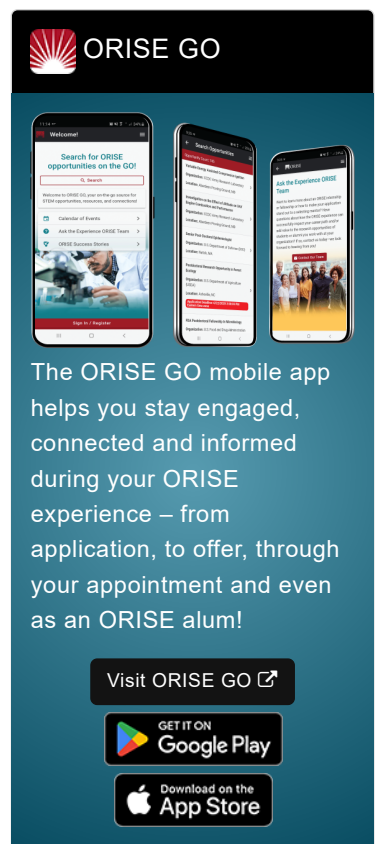

What is the appointment length?

This appointment is a twelve month research appointment, with the possibility to be renewed for additional research periods. Appointments may be extended depending on funding availability, project assignment, program rules, and availability of the participant.

What are the benefits?

You will receive a stipend to be determined by USAEC. Stipends are typically based on a participant's academic standing, discipline, experience, and research facility location. Other benefits may include the following:

- Health Insurance Supplement (Participants are eligible to purchase health insurance through ORISE)

- Relocation Allowance
- Training and Travel Allowance

About U.S. Army Environmental Command (USAEC)

The U.S. Army Environmental Command (USAEC) proudly delivers environmental services and solutions in support of the Army's Environmental Program, enabling Army readiness and sustainability. For more than 40 years, USAEC has provided the knowledge, tools, and programs that support ready and resilient Soldiers, installations, and commands by balancing military training with sound environmental practices. Sound natural resources stewardship through ecosystem management is the underlying approach, and elements of the program include forest management, fish and wildlife (nongame and game), threatened and endangered species, habitat and community management, environmental awareness and environmental protection.
