Description The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) Science, Technology and Policy (STP) Program serves as a next step in the educational and professional development of scientists and engineers by providing opportunities to participate in policy-related projects at DOE's Office of Nuclear Energy (NE) in Washington, D.C. Participants will become part of a group of highly-trained scientists and engineers with the education, background, and experience to be part of the workforce that supports the DOE's mission in the future.

You will have opportunities to enhance your quantitative and qualitative reasoning, critical thinking and problem solving, communication, and teamwork skills. You will receive training, mentoring, and additional support to effectively accomplish internship goals.

Under the guidance of a mentor, you will be involved in the following activities::

- How the Nuclear Energy Office is integrating Energy Justice into their program areas.
- How the office is developing and implementing training materials related to the department's justice and equity policies.
- How the Nuclear Energy Office develops key research and policy briefs.
- Conducting and publishing research in peer-reviewed journals.

Community Outreach and Engagement:

- Collaborate with communities, tribes, and other outside stakeholders

For more information about the Office of Nuclear Energy, please visit <https://www.energy.gov/ne/office-nuclear-energy>.

Participant Benefits

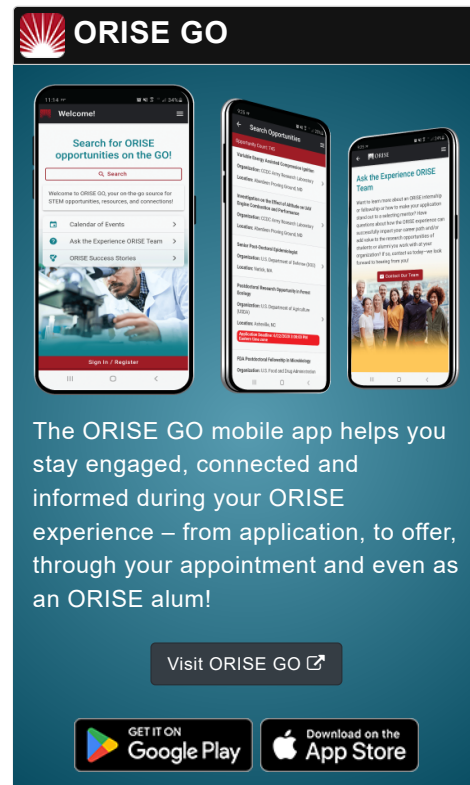

Participants will receive a stipend to be determined by NE, and are typically based on the participant's academic standing, discipline, experience, and research facility location. NE may authorize a stipend increase to offset the costs of health insurance. Participants are eligible to purchase health insurance plans offered through ORISE. A relocation allowance may be provided for participants relocating to Washington, D.C. Participants may also receive an allowance for education and/or scientific activities as approved by NE.

Appointment Location

Washington, D.C.

Anticipated start date

NE is ready to make appointments immediately. Exact start dates will be determined at the time of selection and in coordination with the selected candidates. Applications are reviewed on an ongoing basis and appointments will be offered as qualified candidates are identified.
