    - Description The U.S. Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine (USARIEM) Military Nutrition Division (MND) is offering an internship.

What will I be doing?

As an ORISE participant, you will join a community of scientists and researchers in an effort to design nutritional solutions for improving the health and performance of military personnel.

Studies within the MND have identified relationships between gut microbiota, physiology, metabolism, and health and performance outcomes in military personnel. Ongoing studies are using nutritional approaches targeting the gut microbiota to improve military performance. As the selected candidate, you will support this line of research.

Under the guidance of a mentor, you will gain hands-on experience to complement your education and support your academic and professional goals. Along the way, you will engage in activities and research in several areas. These include, but are not limited to,

- Engaging in the execution of randomized controlled trials conducted at the USARIEM and at locations throughout the United States.
- Receiving hands-on experience collecting, processing, and analyzing biological samples and human subjects' data.
- Learning and conducting research techniques, including ELISA, qPCR, flow cytometry, indirect calorimetry, stable isotopes, and exercise testing.
- Gaining experience analyzing and interpreting data for presentation and publication.

About USARIEM

USARIEM, located 20 miles from downtown Boston in Natick, Massachusetts, is an internationally recognized laboratory of environmental medicine, physiology, and nutrition research within the U.S. Army Medical Research and Development Command. The USARIEM Military Nutrition Division (MND) conducts research on nutritional issues affecting the health, performance and mission-readiness of military personnel, and supports the U.S. Army Surgeon General's responsibilities as the Department of Defense's executive agent for nutrition research.

About ORISE

This program, administered by Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU) through its contract with the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) to manage the Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education (ORISE), was established through an interagency agreement between DOE and DoD. Participants do not enter into an employee/employer relationship with ORISE, ORAU, DoD or any other office or agency. Instead, you will be affiliated with ORISE for the administration of the appointment through the ORISE appointment letter and Terms of Appointment. Proof of health insurance is required for participation in this program. Health insurance can be obtained through ORISE. For more information, visit the ORISE Research Participation Program at the U.S. Department of Defense.

Qualifications Candidates should have recently earned a Bachelor's or Master's degree in nutritional science, physiology, biology or a related field. Degree must have been received within five years of the appointment start date.

Highly competitive applicants will have education and/or experience in one or more of the following:

- Strong communication and organizational skills .
- Human subjects research, laboratory techniques such as ELISA and qPCR, bioinformatics, or computational biology.
