A few helpful tips before you start an application:

- Review the science areas at ORNL to determine what best fits your career goals. You will find the eight discipline areas at www.ornl.gov.
 - For example, if you choose Clean Energy, you will find a variety of news, current research highlights, and more. You can explore other research areas, or related links and organizations to identify your areas of interest and key words, important terminology, papers, etc. that can be used as you answer application questions or update your resume.
 - Type a key word about your research interests into the search box at the top right corner on www.ornl.gov and follow the links provided to identify key researchers at ORNL and/or the webpages of the related directorates or divisions. For example, typing "Environmental Science" leads to the link for the Environmental Sciences Division.
 - You will find general contacts and can access many of the Division or User Facility pages under "Our People".
- After you have completed your application, reach out via email to the researchers of interest you have identified (use the Contact Find People Staff Directory link at www.ornl.gov to enter a name and obtain an email address).
 - $\circ\,$ Tell them about your background and describe how your career objectives and interests relate to their research.

- Include an updated resume/CV in the email and let them know which programs you have applied to at ORNL.
- Showing initiative by reaching out to discuss your passion for science and research is a great way to introduce yourself to potential mentors. This personal connection can be the key to "standing out" from other applications. The GRSI program uses a "pool" application posting where multiple mentors will consider candidates with a variety of interests for different educational project opportunities, so this can be a critical step for selection success.
