CDC Office and Location: A fellowship opportunity is currently available in the Surveillance and Epidemiology Branch, Immunization Services Division within the National Center for Immunization and Respiratory Diseases at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, located in Atlanta, Georgia.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is one of the major operation components of the Department of Health and Human Services. CDC works to protect America from health, safety and security threats, both foreign and in the U.S. Whether diseases start at home or abroad, are chronic or acute, curable or preventable, human error or deliberate attack, CDC fights disease and supports communities and citizens to do the same.

Research Project: The Surveillance and Epidemiology Branch works to provide scientific leadership on measurement of vaccination coverage across the lifespan. The selected participant for this fellowship will participate in training activities that will enhance their skills in analyzing and interpreting data, preparing scientific reports, and responding to data inquiries. Specifically, as a member of the Surveillance and Epidemiology Branch's National Immunization Survey (NIS) Team, the fellow will use NIS data to learn to conduct statistical analyses, develop applied research projects, and provide technical assistance to CDC's immunization program partners. They will collaborate with and be mentored by epidemiologists, statisticians, survey methodologists, and other health scientists who contribute to the National Immunization Survey.

Learning Objectives: Training opportunities may include:

- Monitoring vaccination coverage among children 19-35 months (NIS-Child) and 13-17 years (NIS-Teen);
